MINERALS YEARBOOKS

- Minerals Yearbook, 1932-33, O. E. Kiessling, chief economist, Division of Mineral Statistics, 1933, 61 chapters. 819 pp., 90 figs. This issue represents a change in the method of presenting statistics on economic discussions of minerals. It furnishes statistical information regarding all commercially important minerals, takes the place of "Mineral Re-sources of the United States," and presents a statistical and economic résumé of conditions in the mineral industries.
- +Minerals Yearbook, 1932-33, Statistical Appendix, O. E. Kiessling, chief economist, Division of Min-eral Statistics. 1934. 26 chapters. 554 pp., 10 figs. The appendix is a necessary supplement to the Minerals Yearbook, as it includes figures that, up to the printing of the Yearbook, were preliminary.

pp., 111 figs. Presents economic and statistical summary of mineral industries of the United States in 1943. Throughout the volume, special stress is laid on relationship of minerals to war.

- † Minerals Yearbook, 1944, prepared under the direction of E. W. Pehrson, Economics and Statistics Service; editor, C. E. Needham. 1946. 79 chapters, 1636 pp., 111 figs. Presents economic and statistical summary of mineral industries of the United States in 1944. Throughout the volume special stress is laid on relationship of minerals to war.
- "Minerals Yearbook, 1945, prepared under the direction of E. W. Pehrson, Economics and Statistics Branch; editor, H. D. Keiser. 1947. 80 chapters. 1689 pp., 115 figs. The Minerals Yearbook, authoritative publication on the production, distribution, and consumption of mineral commodities, returns to prewar scope and coverage, including many feasurvey which were discontinued during the emer-gency period. In keeping with a broadened interest in the international mineral situation, an expanded foreign minerals section also is included.
- *Minerals Yearbook, 1946, prepared under the direction of E. W. Pehrson, Economics and Statistics Divi-sion; editor, Allan F. Matthews. 1948. 82 chapters. 1629 pp., 114 figs. The Minerals Yearbook, authoritative publication on the production, distribution, and consumption of mineral commodifies, reviews in detail the history of the first postwar year in the mineral industries.
- Minerals Yearbook, 1947, prepared under the direction of E. W. Pehrson, Economics and Statistics Divi-sion, editor, Allan F. Matthews. 1949. 84 chapters. 1616 pp., 109 figs. Presents in detail basic data of the mineral industry during its year of peak
- activity. $4.25. Minerals Yearbook, 1948, prepared under the direction of E. W. Pehrson, Economics and Statistics Divi-sion; editor, Allan F. Matthews. 1950. 84 chapters. 1652 pp., 127 figs. Reflects broadened interest in the international status of minerals and presents in detail data of the mineral industry during the year. $4.25.
- Minerals Ycarbook, 1949, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines; editor, Allan F. Matthews; assistant editor, John Hozik. 1951. 85 chapters. 1662 pp., 130 figs. Presents in detail basic data of the mineral industry during the year. A separate section dealing with world mineral production is included. $4.50.
- Mineral Yearbook, 1950, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines; editor, Leonard L. Fischman; assisted by John Hozik and Robert E. Herman. 1953. 85 chapters. 1690 pp., 127 figs. The Minerals Yearbook, authoritative publication on the production, distribution, and consumption of mineral commodities, presents in detail basic data of the mineral industry during the year. $4.50.
- Minerals Yearbook, 1951, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines; editor, Paul W. McGann, assistant editor, Robert E. Herman, 1954, 90 chapters, 1694 pp., 125 figs. Presents in detail basic data of the mineral industries during the year, which was one of accelerating activity. $5.25.

Minerals Yearbooks

- Minerals Yearbook, 1952, is published in three volumes, made necessary by an increase in Yearbook material made necessary by an increase in Yearoook material that could no longer be published under a single cover without making the book so thick that it would cause binding problems and so heavy that it would inconvenience the reader. Presents the year's development in the mineral industry. The three volumes mermit fuller coverage in all phases three volumes permit fuller coverage in all phases of the reports, with major expansion in the geo-graphical section (volume III) and in the review of technologic developments and problems.
- Volume I, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Minerals Division. 1965. 77 chapters. 1218 pp., 80 figs. Covers the metals and minerals other than fuels. $4.00.
- Volume II, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Fuels and Explosives Division. 1954. 15 chapters. 450 pp., 34 figs. Covers the mineral fuels. $2.25.
- volume III, prepared by the field staff of the Bureau of Mines, Regional Mineral Industry Divisions. 1955. 53 chapters. 1050 pp., 51 figs. Presents statis-tical data and mineral-industry information for each State and Territory, as well as the island posses-sions and Canal Zone. Most chapters were prepared state and territory, as well as the hand posses sions and Canal Zone. Most chapters were prepared under cooperative agreements with State or island agencies for the collection of mineral data. $3.75. Minerals Tearbook, 1953, is published in three volumes
- to provide a more comprehensive review of mineralindustry activities. Presents the year's progress and developments. The three volumes permit fuller coverage in all phases of the reports, but major expansion has been undertaken in the regional presentation (volume III) and in the regional technologic developments and problems in the com-modity presentation (volumes I and II).
- Volume I, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Division of Minerals. 1956. 78 chapters. 1373 pp., 86 figs. Covers the metals and minerals other than fuels. $4.50.
- Volume II, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Fuels and Explosives Division. 1956. 15 chapters. 478 pp., 46 figs. Covers the mineral fuels. $2.25.
- Volume III, prepared by the field staff of the Bureau of Mines, Regional Mineral Industry Divisions. 1956. 54 chapters. 1169 pp., 53 figs. Presents statistical data and mineral-industry information for each State and Territory, as well as the island posses-sions and Canal Zone. Most chapters were pre-pared under cooperative agreements with State or island agencies for the collection of mineral data. $4.00.
- Minerals Yearbook, 1954, published in three volumes, presents the year's progress and developments, including material collected for the 1954 Census of Minerals Industry.
- Volume I, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Division of Minerals. 1958. 80 chapters. 1419 pp., 74 figs. Covers the metals and minerals other than fuels. $4.50.
- Volume II, prepared by the staff of the Bureau of Mines, Division of Petroleum, Division of Bitumi-nous Coal, and Division of Anthracite. 1958. 15 chapters. 465 pp., 45 figs. Covers the mineral fuels. $2.25.
- Volume III, prepared by the field staff of the Bureau of Mines, Regional Divisions of Mineral Industries. 1957. 53 chapters. 1179 pp., 60 figs. Presents statistical data and mineral-industry information for each State and Territory, as well as the island posses-sions and Canal Zone. Most chapters were prepared under cooperative agreements with State or island agencies for the collection of mineral data. $4.00.
